CIVIL CODE OF TURKMENISTAN

Translated and Edited by William E. Butler

Price:	£95.00
ISBN:	9780854902842
Extent:	368pp
Binding:	Hardback

The Civil Code of Turkmenistan here appears for the first time in English since the original version published in 1999. Changes have been substantial in a text renowned for incomplete and inaccurate versions. Of all the post-Soviet civil codes, this is in many ways the most sophisticated in drawing upon continental models and remains a key document for any foreign investor or comparative lawyer as a leading Central Asian example of the transition to a market-oriented economy.

William E. Butler is the John Edward Fowler Distinguished Professor of Law, Dickinson Law, Pennsylvania State University; Emeritus Professor of Comparative Law, University College London; Academician, National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine and National Academy of Legal Sciences of Ukraine; Associate, International Academy of Comparative Law. He has published a number of works on the legal systems of Central Asia, including translations of the civil codes of Kazakhstan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan.

ADVISING AND REPRESENTING CLIENTS AT MEDIATION

Second Edition

Stephen Walker and David Smith

Price:	£45.00
ISBN:	9780854902774
Extent	268pp
Binding:	Paperback

Advising and Representing Clients at Mediation is an invaluable guide for lawyers, surveyors and other professionals. It will assist at every stage of the mediation process from persuading the other party to mediate and preparing for and taking part in the mediation itself to advising clients on what to expect and how to conduct themselves at a mediation.

The book also offers extensive checklists and precedents, practical advice from experienced mediators, and a clear explanation of the law as it currently stands.

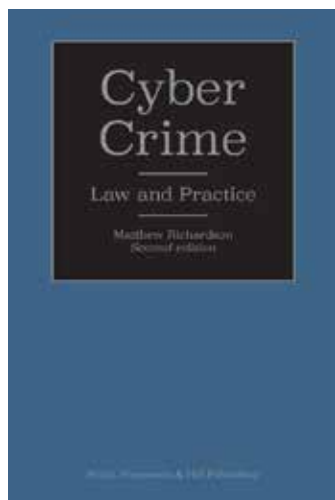

The book is fully updated with all the changes in the mediation sector including new relevant case law, the new approaches created by the Jackson reforms and the Jackson ADR Handbook, and the latest thinking on ADR processes and procedures.

“Every now and then a book is published for legal representatives that goes beyond a mere analysis of the law and technical guidance, and makes the reader stop and think. This is one such publication. I wish I had read this book before I first represented clients as a solicitor at mediations. Now, as a commercial mediator, plenty in the book resonates with my own experiences. It is packed with real-life tips and examples. It will help a representative get the very best out of the mediation process for their client.”

The Law Society Gazette (from the review of the previous edition)

Stephen Walker is a retired solicitor and an active accredited mediator and Fellow of the Institute of Arbitrators. He is ranked in the top 40 mediators in both the Legal 500 and Chambers and has been appointed in over 700 mediations.

David Smith is a partner and Head of Operations at Anthony Gold Solicitors. He is an accredited mediator with Regents School of Psychotherapy and ADR Group and a former trustee of Portsmouth Mediation Service.

WILLS: A PRACTICAL GUIDE

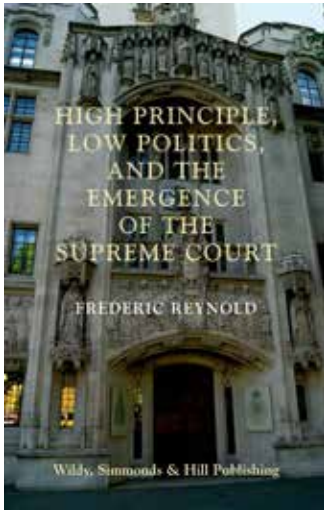

Second Edition

Professor Lesley King and Peter Gausden

Price:	£39.00
ISBN:	9780854902743
Extent	328pp
Binding:	Paperback

This new edition of Wills: A Practical Guide explains what is involved in making a will, with particular reference to avoiding those issues which often give rise to litigation. Information is provided on the formalities for making a will, including the testator's capacity and related issues, particularly those involving the elderly, which may affect the validity of the will. There are sections on less common aspects of will-making but which often cause problems for practitioners including gifts for the benefit of pets, gifts to employees, gifts of business interests, mutual (as distinguished from mirror) wills, testamentary options, burial and other requests and dealing with property overseas. These matters are dealt with in the context of how a contentious will is now interpreted by the court in light of the Supreme Court's decision in Marley v Rawlings and other rules of construction.

The inheritance tax implications of will planning and drafting are covered along with typical strategies for dealing with family wealth by making best use of the exemptions and reliefs available. There is also a chapter aimed at dealing with drafting pitfalls and, more importantly, how to avoid them. Problems can arise if the existence of a will is uncertain and so there is a helpful section on storing and locating a will. The book also features a selection of useful precedents and checklists.

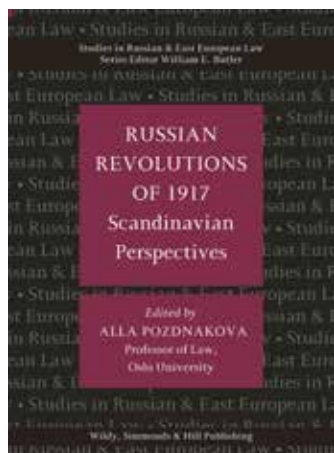

HIGH PRINCIPLE, LOW POLITICS, AND THE EMERGENCE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Frederic Reynold

Price:	£14.95
ISBN:	9780854902835
Extent:	154pp
Binding:	Paperback

The Supreme Court of the United Kingdom has now been in existence for ten years and appears to have seamlessly become part of the fabric of our legal system. This book tells the remarkable story, full of twists and turns, of how and why this court came to be created; and in doing so taps into a rich seam of social and political history. It also provides an insight, free of legal jargon, into how the court has “performed” in the light of both the fears and the expectations which greeted its arrival.

The author, who has known personally some of the main characters in the story, has had a long and distinguished career at the Bar, appearing in many landmark cases in different areas of the law. His memoir: Chance, Cheek and some Heroics was published last year, and proved very popular.

The reader who handles and sells guns, both commercially or for sport, will find everything they need to know here. Although the subjects covered can be complex, the book is written in an approachable style to be understood by all of those with an interest in the subject.

Since the seventh edition of this work in 2011 there have been significant changes to firearms legislation which are covered in full, including key changes in the Policing and Crime Act 2017 including new definitions of ‘firearm’; ‘component part’; ‘deactivated weapon’ and ‘antique firearm’.

The book covers all decisions of the higher courts regarding this area since 2011 and deals with the likely effects of the UK leaving the European Union. Police policy on the licensing of firearms is covered in addition to the process of application and appeal to the Crown Court. Applications to lift a ‘firearms prohibition’ are also considered.

Laura Saunbury is a consultant solicitor who has been in practise for over 25 years. She specialises exclusively in firearms-related law, dealing with both firearms licensing appeals and criminal offences involving firearms. Laura is Honorary Solicitor and shotgun licensing advisor and Life Vice President of the Clay Pigeon Shooting Association and is also the Honorary Solicitor to the Deactivated Weapons Association. She is a member of the Gun Trade Association. Laura is a regular contributor to the CPSA magazine Pull! and gives seminars and broadcast interviews on this area of law.

Nick Doherty is a practising barrister who has been involved in firearms-related criminal work for over 30 years and now specialises in firearms licensing appeals. Since 2008 Nick has been the only common law legal advisor to the International Council for Game and Wildlife Conservation (The CIC). In addition to presenting seminars, writing articles, and giving interviews on firearms law, Nick is the chairman of a shooting club and a Liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Gunmakers.

THE INTERNATIONAL INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE INTERGOVERNMENTAL AUTHORITY ON DEVELOPMENT

The Republic of Uganda

By Chrispas Nyombi & Tom Mortimer

Price:	£20.00
ISBN:	9780854902781
Extent:	202pp
Size:	229mm x 152mm
Binding:	Paperback

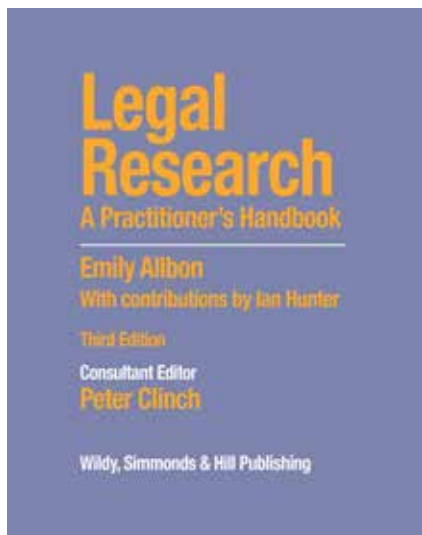

Traditionally, African states have played a very active and influential position in both the design and development of international investment law.

This book reviews the types of Bilateral Investment Treaties concluded by the Intergovernmental Authority on Development (IGAD) Member States, using Uganda as a case study, with the objective of establishing the investment treaty practice of African states. In so doing, the text sets out to examine whether African treaty practice conforms or differs from general investment law. While reviewing this practice, the text also explores the extent to which the emerging investment treaty practice interferes or restrains legitimate policy making by African states.

Ultimately, this book argues that there has been a paradigm shift in the investment treaty practice of African states. Whereas historically they have argued for and defended their state sovereignty they now adopt, via BIT's, a more peculiar position of acquiescence. This text proposes how, going forward, African states might re-assert their independence and contribute to the further development of international investment law in a meaningful and pro-active way.

Chrispas Nyombi is a Reader (Associate Professor) in International Commercial Law and Director of Research in Law at Canterbury Christ Church University. He is part of a Panel appointed by the General Assembly of IGAD tasked with creating an International Arbitration and Mediation Centre in Djibouti.

Tom Mortimer is the Director of Law at Canterbury Christ Church University. He has over thirty years of experience in legal education, including Head of Law School at three Universities and has published widely in the areas of business law in practice, comparative law and governance, International law and in learning and teaching.

POSITIVE COVENANTS AND FREEHOLD LAND

Christopher Jessel

Price:	£95.00
ISBN:	9780854902699
Extent:	326pp
Binding:	Hardback

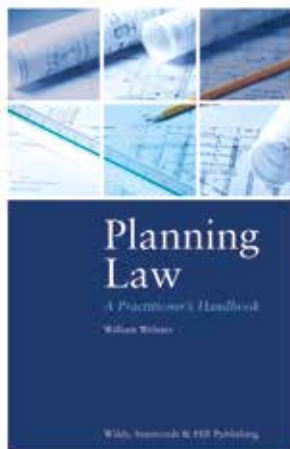

Positive covenants are obligations binding the owner of land for the time being which require some form of action or expenditure such as keeping a roof or wall in repair or paying instalments of service charge over many years.

Positive Covenants and Freehold Land concerns the rule of property law that a positive covenant cannot bind successors in title to the original covenantor. It considers the origin of the rule, the legal reasoning behind it, and the historical, social and political context in which it has developed. The book then looks at the various methods to circumvent it by using restrictions on the register of title, estate rentcharges, rights of re-entry, the principle of benefit and burden and the use of long leases as virtual freeholds.

A modern structure designed to overcome the problem is the system of commonhold which is currently under review by the Law Commission. The law of easements, particularly in relation to fencing, and the law of nuisance can have the effect of imposing positive obligations on landowners. Statutes can also either require owners to take specified steps such as keeping listed buildings in repair or they can authorise a landowner to enter into obligations as under the Town and Country Planning Act s 106. Separate chapters examine the issues to be considered on assignment of the benefit of positive covenants, on the transfer of land which is subject to the burden of them, and on the way that covenants operate in the management of housing and commercial estates.

Reform of the law of positive covenants has been in prospect for over 50 years without any response by Parliament but there is now the possibility of Government support. A chapter is included on issues to be borne in mind in drafting covenants and an examination of the juristic nature of positive covenants and their nature as part of a neighbour relationship. The book also features a number of suggested precedents for the practitioner.

Christopher Jessel is a solicitor and was a partner with Farrer & Co of Lincoln's Inn Fields, practising in rural property, constitutional and charity law and was previously Assistant Editor of the Rights of Way Law Review. He has written articles and books on property-related subjects including: The Law of the Manor (2nd ed, Wildy, Simmonds & Hill) A Legal History of the English Landscape (Wildy, Simmonds & Hill) Farms and Estates: A Conveyancing Handbook (2nd ed) and Development Land Overage and Clawback (2nd ed).

PLANNING LAW

A Practitioner's Handbook

William Webster

Price:	£125.00
ISBN:	9780854902552
Extent:	766pp
Binding:	Hardback

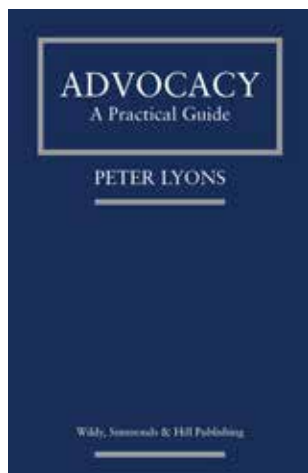

Keeping pace with planning law is no easy matter. The mass of primary and secondary legislation in this field, allied to local and national policy and guidance, make this the most intensively regulated area of the law.

This comprehensive practitioner's handbook covers the widest possible range of planning topics in a single volume and is written for planning practitioners in the private and public sectors. This book combines a readily accessible narrative with a substantial body of footnotes for those looking for more detail when it comes to case law and statutory materials.

Planning Law: A Practitioner's Handbook provides the busy planning professional with answers to a whole range of problems which commonly arise in the day-to-day practice. Its advantage lies in the fact that it is a single up-to-date reference book covering a broad range of topics which might otherwise only be found in a number of specialist texts.

It also contains sections on village greens, assets of community value, public rights of way, and gypsies and travellers, all of which impact on the realisation of land for planning purposes. The inclusion of these topics will be of particular value to practitioners in the public sector looking for up-to-date guidance in these fields.

William Webster was called to the Bar in 1975 and is a tenant at 3 Paper Buildings practicing in the fields of land and planning law. He is a member of the Chancery Bar Association and joint author of Restrictions on the Use of Land published by Wildy, Simmonds & Hill.

ADVOCACY A Practical Guide

Peter Lyons

Price:	£19.95
ISBN:	9780854902668
Extent:	282pp
Binding:	Paperback

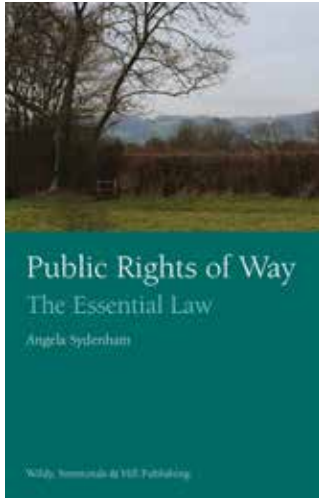

“I have read no better guide to the practicalities of good advocacy than Peter Lyons’ book. It is informed by years of experience and by a wealth of illuminating anecdotes that will instruct and entertain all advocates from the novice to the QC. It is easy to understand, comprehensive (from opening submissions, through cross-examination to final speeches) and, as one would expect of a book on advocacy, completely persuasive.”

From the foreword by Lord Pannick QC

Advocacy: A Practical Guide is for those who wish to learn essential advocacy skills as well as those seeking to make their advocacy more effective. It shows you how to overcome nerves; how to present clearly and ethically; and how to undertake case analysis. It will also show you how to succeed in Interim Applications (Motions); Handling Witnesses in Examination-in-Chief (Direct Examination) and in Cross-Examination; Re-examination; Making Submissions of Law to a Court or Panel; and Trial Speeches. There is also a section on Written Advocacy which teaches you to write persuasively and how to draft submissions and effective skeleton arguments.

The book is aimed at barristers, solicitors, arbitration lawyers, patent attorneys and students. International lawyers will also find the book helpful, providing as it does, a better understanding of common law practice such as cross-examination.

Peter Lyons is an Australian barrister and solicitor living in the UK. Since 1995 he has taught advocacy to civil, common and arbitration lawyers, barristers and patent attorneys. He designed and has taught the Bar’s Public Access course and many programmes for the top City law firms, as well as the first LLM in Advocacy at the University of Strathclyde. His company, CPD Training (UK) trains candidates for Higher Rights of Audience.

PUBLIC RIGHTS OF WAY

The Essential Law

Angela Sydenham

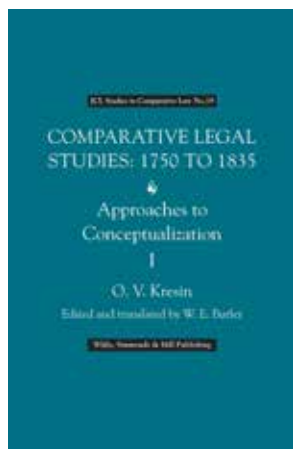

Price:	£45.00
ISBN:	9780854902088
Extent:	230pp
Binding:	Paperback

This succinct, practical and up-to-date book is an introduction to the complex area of public rights of way. It is aimed at practitioners, lawyers and surveyors, who are not necessarily experts in this area of law, but who may have to deal with rights of way in conveyancing transactions, land management or planning matters. The book will also be useful for those landowners, farmers and those working for local authorities.

For this reason, the book does not follow the conventional pattern of dividing the chapters into subject topics, but looks at the law from the angle of the landowner, the purchaser, the public users of the rights and the local authority. There will, of course, be some chapters which will be relevant to all parties.

Sections 20 to 26 of, and Schedule 7 to, the Deregulation Act 2015 will introduce many changes to the recording of public rights of way. The provisions were originally expected to come into force in April 2016. Although the relevant regulations are still awaited the book covers the prospective legislation.

Angela Sydenham was a consultant with Birketts, and was formerly Chief Legal Adviser to the Country Landowners' Association. She is the author of several books on the law relating to rural property. These include, amongst others, Commons and Greens (2nd edition), Public Rights of Way (4th edition), Agricultural Tenancies (Wildy, Simmonds & Hill) and has contributed to the section on commons in Halsbury's Laws of England and The Encyclopaedia of Forms and Precedents.

JCL Studies in Comparative Law No. 19
COMPARATIVE LEGAL STUDIES: 1750-1835

Approaches to Conceptualization

2 volumes

O. V. Kresin
edited and translated by
W.E. Butler

Price:	£125.00
ISBN:	9780854902729
Extent:	321pp+432pp
Binding:	Hardback

A revisionist interpretation of the origins of comparative law as a discipline, these volumes reconsider the period from 1750 to 1835 and take the origins of “legal comparativistics” back at least eight and a half decades in comparison with traditional understandings of the history of comparative jurisprudence. The influence of Hegelian approaches is much in evidence in this study. The transformations that occurred were propelled by the secularization of natural law. Legal knowledge separated itself from philosophy and became a positivist, social, and empirical legal science.

Volume One addresses the historiographical, theoretical and methodological foundations of comparative legal studies, the scientific approaches to periodizing the history of comparative legal studies, conceptualization of the theoretical grounds of comparative legal studies, the prerequisites and context of the theoretical foundations of comparative legal studies, transformation of concepts on natural law, and the forming of doctrines of national law.

Volume Two addresses the origins of the theoretical foundations of comparative law, and then turns to the roles of the Individual and the Universal in developing a comparative legal scientific picture of the world, with attention to the Particular in Law and the classification of national legal systems. The reconsideration of approaches to comparative-legal conceptualization is accompanied by an extensive Bibliography of sources.

Oleksiy Kresin, доктор юридических наук, is a leading Ukrainian comparative lawyer; Head, Center of Comparative Jurisprudence, Koretskii Institute of State and Law, National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine; Associate, International Academy of Comparative Law; Secretary-General, Ukrainian Associate of Comparative Jurisprudence; President, Ukrainian National Committee, International Association of Legal Sciences.
