MAJOR NEW TITLES THIS MONTH

Astin, Diane, Housing Law: An Adviser's Handbook, Legal Action Group, Paperback, £35.00, ISBN: 9781903307434

Wildy's Book of the Month
Housing Law: An Adviser's Handbook is a new handbook aimed at lawyers and advisers either entering housing law or acting as non-specialist advisers. Covering all the basic aspects of housing law, this book focuses on the practical: the common problems faced by advisers, court proceedings and the tactics of running a case, challenging decisions, and seeking remedies. Each chapter begins with key points and includes checklists and summaries.

The book is fully supported by appendices including a glossary, procedural checklists and precedents. Combining a clear, accessible approach to the law involved with a comprehensive survey of all important elements of housing law, this definitive handbook is not only an invaluable resource to those new to housing law but will also provide the solution for the experienced housing lawyer looking for a quick answer or some reassurance.

Bannister, Edward, Commercial Leases 2009: A Surveyor's Guide, RICS Books, Paperback, £39.95, ISBN: 9781842194324

Broadly following the structure of a typical lease of commercial premises, the book provides clear commentary on the Code for Leasing Business Premises in England and Wales 2007, the RICS Service Charge Code and other relevant guidance. It provides straightforward advice on applying the Codes for surveyors and lawyers alike, illustrated with the latest case law and practical examples.

Bell, Mark, Race and Equality in the European Union, Oxford University Press, Hardback, £40.00, ISBN: 9780199297849

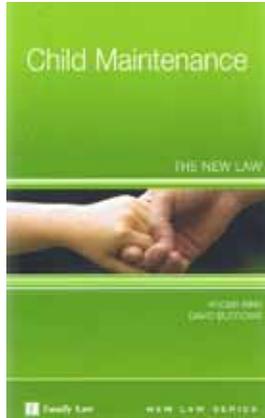

This book analyses the extent to which the objectives of combating racism and promoting ethnic equality have been effectively mainstreamed throughout a wide range of EU policy fields. It begins by considering what combating racism means in the contemporary context of the enlarged EU. Bell explores what mainstreaming ethnic equality objectives entails, and whether the priorities and instruments differ from those adopted in the earlier mainstreaming of gender equality, or those used on other discrimination grounds. The second part of the book examines the extent to which EU law and policy objectives have, in practice, been integrated, exploring the effects in the key areas of employment, social inclusion (including education, health and housing), immigration, and criminal law.

Bird, Roger; Burrows, David, Child Maintenance: The New Law, Jordan Publishing Ltd, Paperback, £45.00, ISBN: 9781846611308

The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act will radically change the existing child support system by replacing the Child Support Agency with a new body, the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission (CMEC). Child Maintenance: The New Law is a detailed account of the new legislation. This invaluable and authoritative guide offers practitioners advice on the law, practice and procedure under the new regime which includes simplifying how child maintenance is calculated, encouraging parents to make their own child maintenance arrangements and introducing tougher enforcement powers to collect arrears of child maintenance from parents who fail to pay.

Birnie, Patricia; Boyle, Alan; Ridgwell, Catherine, International Law and the Environment 3rd ed, Oxford University Press, Paperback, £36.99, ISBN: 9780198764229

As conservation of the environment plays an increasingly important role within society, International Law and the Environment continues to be the essential read for students and practitioners alike. International Law and the Environment, whilst remaining rooted within the substantive law, places legislation on the protection of the environment firmly at the core of its current context. Written by three of the foremost experts in this field, the authors employ sharp and thorough analysis of the laws, allowing them to share their extensive knowledge and experience with the reader. The authors provide a unique perspective on the implications of international regulation, promoting a wider understanding of the pertinent issues impacting upon the law.

Boas, Gideon; Bischoff, James; Reid, Natalie, International Criminal Law Practitioner Library: Volume 2, Elements of Crimes under International Law, Cambridge University Press, Hardback, £85.00, ISBN: 9780521878302

Volume II of the International Criminal Law Practitioner Library series focuses on the core categories of international crimes: crimes against humanity, genocide, and war crimes. The authors present a comprehensive and critical review of the law on the elements of these crimes and their underlying offences, and examine how they interact with the forms of responsibility discussed in Volume I.

Bohlander, Michael, Principles of German Criminal Law, Hart Publishing, Paperback, £30.00, ISBN: 9781841136301

German criminal law doctrine, as one of the more influential ones over time and on a global scale, takes rather different approaches to many of the problems of substantive law from those of the common law family of countries like the UK, the US, Canada, New Zealand, Australia etc. It also differs markedly from the system which is most often used in Anglophone writing as a civil law comparison, the French law. German criminal law is a code-based model and has been for centuries. The influence of academic writing on its development has been far greater than in the judge-oriented common law models.

Boyle, James, The Public Domain: Enclosing the Commons of the Mind, Yale University Press, Hardback, £18.00, ISBN: 9780300137408

In this enlightening book James Boyle describes what he calls the range wars of the information age—today's heated battles over intellectual property. Boyle argues that just as every informed citizen needs to know at least something about the environment or civil rights, every citizen should also understand intellectual property law. Why? Because intellectual property rights mark out the ground rules of the information society, and today's policies are unbalanced, unsupported by evidence, and often detri-

Brunner, Christoph, Force Majeure and Hardship Under General Contract Principles, Kluwer Law International, Hardback, £132.00, ISBN: 9789041127921

Lawyers involved in international commercial transactions know well that that unforeseen events affecting the performance of a party often arise. Not surprisingly, exemptions for non-performance are dealt with in a significant number of arbitral awards. This very useful book thoroughly analyzes contemporary approaches, particularly as manifested in case law, to the scope and content of the principles of exemption for non-performance which are commonly referred to as ‘force majeure’ and ‘hardship.’

Buckley, Stephn; Buckley, Caroline, Understanding Criminal Law, Manchester University Press, Paperback, £11.99, ISBN: 9780719075056

A complete understanding of criminal law is essential to pass the A2 in law and this book provides that, for the first time linking all the elements of criminal law together to form a coherent whole. Written by two practicing teachers, the book is accessible and user-friendly, featuring references to key cases, summary boxes and tables, clear introductions as well as study skills and sample examination questions.

infrastructure sector.

Dorey, Neil; Graham, Simon; Stubbs, Jane A.; Moylan, Niamh; Callow, Roy S.; Dearden, Phillip, Taxation in the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man Looseleaf, Tottel Publishing Ltd, Looseleaf, 1 Volume, £74.00, ISBN: 9781847661517

Formerly published as an annual paperback book, this new loose-leaf is written by key experts from each of these islands, and covers each tax system in detail enabling swift comparisons between the various rates and allowances. All the latest tax opportunities are outlined alongside the new 2008 rules, regulations and tax rates. If your clients have any financial interests in either of these territories this title demands a place on your bookshelf.

Eggleston, Brian, Liquidated Damages and Extensions of

Time in Construction Contracts 3rd ed, Wiley-Blackwell, Hardback, £69.50, ISBN: 9781405118156

Liquidated damages and extensions of time frequently form the basis of contract claims made under the standard building and civil engineering contracts. This well regarded book covers the legal principles and examines in depth the relevant clauses of the standard construction contracts. The third edition takes account of new case law since the previous edition was published over ten years ago, including the important case on Wembley Stadium. It also covers all the JCT 2005 new contracts and the latest edition of the new engineering contract, NEC3.

ing Practice under International Financial Reporting Standards, John Wiley & Sons Ltd, Paperback, 2 Volumes, £125.00, ISBN: 9780470740033

International GAAP 2009 is written from a global perspective. It does not have the jurisdictional bias that is present in other publications. It is not constrained by any individual country's legislation or financial reporting regulations, and it ensures an international consistency of approach unavailable elsewhere. It shows how difficult practical issues should be approached in the new complex global world of international financial reporting, where IFRSs have become the accepted financial reporting system in more than 100 countries. This integrated approach provides a unique level of authoritative mate-

Farran, Sue, Human Rights in the South Pacific: Challenges and Changes, Routledge-Cavendish, Hardback, £85.00, ISBN: 9781844721092

This book looks at the challenges and contemporary issues raised by human rights in the island countries of the South West Pacific which have come under the influence of the common law - where the legal systems are complex and perceptions of rights varies widely. Drawing on a wide range of resources to present a contemporary and evolving picture of human rights in the island states of the South Pacific region, the book considers the human rights aspects of constitutions, legal institutions and structures, social organisation, culture and custom, tradition and change.

Flechtner, Harry M.; Brand, Ronald A., Drafting Contracts Under the CISG, Oxford University Press, Hardback, £98.00, ISBN: 9780195340747

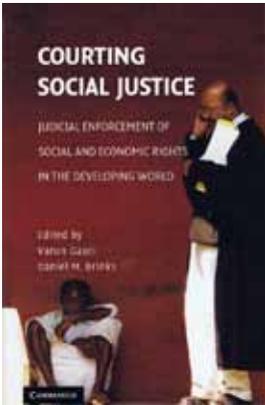

The CISG is the United Nations Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods; a treaty ratified by about 70 countries that provides a uniform international sales law. The occasion of the CISG's 25th anniversary signals something extremely significant in the world of international commercial law: the true coming of age of the CISG, as evidenced by (and as a result of) several thousand available court and arbitration decisions world-wide applying the CISG. To celebrate this occasion, a conference was organized by the University of Pittsburgh's Center for International Legal Education and the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL). Drafting Contracts Under the CISG is a collaborative and important result of that conference. This publication brings together the intellectually sophisticated yet extremely practical and original contributions written by leading CISG scholars from around the globe and practitioners experienced in dealing with the CISG. Included are 140 sample clauses, a complete model sales agreement, and contextual analysis of contract drafting issues.

Agreements: Case Studies, Cambridge University Press, Hardback, £75.00, ISBN: 9780521878289

As the Doha Development Round trade negotiations have stalled, bilateral and regional free trade agreements have become an important alternative. These agreements have proliferated in recent years, and now all of the major trading countries are engaging in serious bilateral trade negotiations with multiple trading partners. This book provides a comprehensive study of recent bilateral and regional trade agreements. There are two main aspects. First, it surveys the most important recent agreements in relation to each substantive topic covered (e.g. intellectual property, investment, services and social policy) and provides an overview of the law being created in these areas. Second, the bilateral and regional trade agreements are explained in the context of economics, international law and international relations.

Loveday, Mark; Guest, Andy; Rainey, Philip, Rent Review: Arbitration and Third Party Determination: A Surveyor's Handbook, RICS Books,

Paperback, £45.00, ISBN: 9781842194102

and contractual orientations to be decided. The ISO 9000 series of standards are examined within the context of the process plant construction site. A study is then made of the roles of the organizations involved and of the interfaces between them. Special attention is given to document and materiel control, followed by a review of the various monitoring and feedback systems to keep the project on track moving towards the ultimate goal of satisfactory construction completion leading to turnover. Model procedures are proposed, complete with forms attached, and a number of case studies are included to illustrate the practical application of the principles presented.

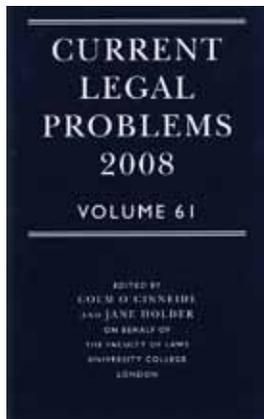

Hardback, £79.50, ISBN: 9781405187251

New edition of an established and respected volume previously entitled Offshore Oil & Gas Insurance. This work provides a comprehensive study of the subject, seeking to describe the development of the business and to explain the coverages customarily purchased by the oil companies. Whilst this is its fundamental aim, it also provides a snapshot view of the offshore energy insurance market as it is today, tracing the origins of the marine market's current difficulties and its response to the loss pattern of recent years.

Sherry, Michael, Whiteman and Sherry on Capital Gains Tax 5th ed Looseleaf, Sweet & Maxwell Ltd, Looseleaf, £325.00, ISBN:

Whiteman & Sherry on Capital Gains Tax explores every aspect of the law that impacts on capital gains tax. It looks at the case law analysing the major decisions of the courts and their implications. It examines the statutory provisions, identifying areas of difficulty and offering the authors' views. Now published in a new looseleaf edition with updates twice a year.

Teff, Harvey, Causing Psychiatric and Emotional Harm: Reshaping the Boundaries of Legal Liability, Hart Publishing, Hardback, £30.00, ISBN: 9781841132167

The book traces the history of civil liability for mental harm up to the present day. It is argued that the reluctance to provide redress reflects an enduring suspicion of intangible injury and undue fear of proliferating claims. The scale and legal ramifications of the Hillsborough disaster; the emergence of claims arising from work-related stress, and other new categories of claims based mainly on prior relationships between the parties, have all added to a 'floodgates fear' that has intensified due to popular perceptions of a 'compensation culture'.

Kerala Cycle Challenge 10-19 October 2008

October 10-11 2008 Heathrow to Kochi

At the hour of half past silly o'clock on the morning of Friday 10 October 2008, the 46 cyclists setting out on this year's challenge congregated at Heathrow airport. Some far too full of the joys of spring, others hardly daring to open their eyes for fear that they would bleed to death. To be fair, most of those in the latter category had stayed either in a local hotel or at Loz's and probably hadn't overfulfilled their sleep quota. This year there was a total of 46 cyclists, including 22 "virgins". This meant that the scene at Heathrow consisted of lots of reunions mixed with people meeting for the first time before heading off for an early breakfast and the first leg of the journey which took us to Dubai.

By the time we'd reached there the party had started to bond, and it was hard already to tell who were the newbies and who were the old hands, though the group that decided that the delights of the 3 hour chance to look around the Dubai airport could be foregone for the opportunity of sitting in the Irish bar and having the last pints of Guinness for the next 10 days were all veterans of several rides.

We finally arrived in Kochi in the early hours of Saturday morning and were allocated rooms at the hotel which was fortunately only a few minutes drive away from the airport. Most people disappeared off to catch up on well-needed sleep while a few hardy souls managed to discover the roof garden and then set about the arduous task of persuading the hotel staff that a beer at 6 in the morning to watch the sun rise was really a good idea.

Following a too brief sleep, most of the party went out on a trip to investigate the delights of Kochi. This included the ancient Chinese fishing nets and a display of traditional dancing, featuring green- and red-faced, pot-bellied men, dressed as women. Those who overslept and missed the trip, were treated to a storm of monsoon proportions, including the most amazing lightning I have ever seen-the sight of an elephant wandering past the front of the hotel at the height of the storm, just helped to emphasise the fact that we were no longer in the UK!

October 12 2008 Kochi

Most of the team made the most of the last day of leisure before the ride by having a lazy morning-though the sleeping in was probably helped by the quantity of Kingfisher beer which seemed to have been consumed the previous evening. Bike fitting was commenced early in the afternoon with a marvellous system being instigated by Gideon, our tour leader. This consisted of arranging that those who had birthdays in January should be there at 1pm, those born in February at 1.15 and so on through the year. It was an early lesson for him in how this particular group of riders works in that people started randomly appearing at about 12.45 and the whole group was assembled by 1.30. After this early experience, any plans made for us were much simpler and more manageable.

After another delicious meal of curry, the team went early to bed, after a couple of glasses of lemonade, in preparation for the ordeal ahead.¹

October 13 2008 Day 1 Kochi-Thattekad

And so the great ride began. In true challenge fashion, the 7am departure occurred at 7.30 – Gideon was really starting to get the hang of us now. The day's ride was due to be pretty flat the whole time, but we were warned about the heat and humidity to come.

We stopped after about 4km for a blessing at a Hindu temple, which was designed to make sure that we all had a safe and pleasant trip. I'm sure the fact that about half way through this one of the group managed to knock over the sacred flame would have no effect on the outcome of the ride and the health of the participants. Thereafter we had our first experiences of how the Indian traffic system works. It appears to be based upon the very simple premise that "might is right", and being on a bicycle does not put you very high up the food chain, particularly not when you are sharing the road with 10 ton trucks, ordinary cars, tuk-tuks, motorbikes and elephants.

As we rode along the side of a canal towards our destination, the temperature got up into the 90's, and the humidity almost to 80%. It was cooler to keep cycling as at least that created some breeze, whereas standing still meant that you were melting, though some of the ladies would insist that they were merely glowing.

Lunch was beckoning and, when it arrived, it was well worth the effort made to get there. This was the first of what were the best lunches I've ever had on one of these rides. A team of chefs and helpers went in advance of us to set up a tent to give us shade and then cooked the most wondrous curries and accompanying breads from scratch for us. Lunch was (as it was most days through the week) accompanied by a lecture from Doctor Sophie, reminding us to drink more and I don't think anybody needed any second invitation having spent the morning cycling between sauna and steam room!

The afternoon ride was slightly tougher, culminating in a ride over an unmade surface to the final destination. It was worth it though as we finished by a lake, which meant that many people were able to make use of the various boats around the area to go either canoeing or rafting. The group were staying in 2 different locations so while those who were remaining behind at the Hornbill camp could get settled in, the rest of us were bussed over to our accommodation for that night. We regrouped for our evening meal and a couple of glasses of well-earned beer before turning in for the night ready for the big climb on the morrow.

October 14 2008 Day 2 Thattekad-Munnar

We had already been warned about today, and there was an air of apprehension in the camp over breakfast in dread anticipation of what was to come. The atmosphere was lightened somewhat before we set off. While Jo Read led the official warm up, an alternative version was proffered by Don Robertson, with his chant of "Out with the rubbish, in with the new". After all this worry, the first stage of the day was somewhat of a disappointment, being largely flat and even slightly downhill.

After this though, the hill began, and went on, and on, and on, and on...you get the picture! We spent the rest of the day climbing at a reasonably stiff pace and the rest of the day was punctuated by a combination of breathtaking scenery, particularly as we rose into the tea plantations, and particularly articulate swearing from various members of the group. I thought I was pretty inventive in that department but had to concede defeat to several of our members who came out with words I had never dreamt of.

The highlight of the day was the lunch time break when we stopped at the Eastern Public School Adimali for yet another wonderful lunch. This was followed, before we continued our ride, by a welcome from hundreds of the schoolchildren, immaculately turned out in their school uniforms. We were greeted by speeches from the headmaster as well as performances from the school choir and by 2 of the girls doing traditional dances. The best the group could manage in return was a rousing chorus of “If you’re happy and you know it clap your hands”. The children seemed to appreciate it though and were enthusiastic in their applause.

The afternoon was, if anything, harder than the morning, which meant that the work was harder and the swearing even more inventive. It was all worth it though for the finish, which was at a hill station with an absolutely wondrous view over the valley below. We had a cold beer, and an idea of the amount we’d climbed that day. It was later confirmed that we had achieved the equivalent of riding up Ben Nevis, and I think everybody felt it at that point. We were then bussed to our hotel for the night, and another early night ensued-I think it was the quietest I have ever known the group.

October 15 2008 Day 3 Munnar-Periyar

A day of cycling that was different to the previous day, but in many ways just as hard. After a brief early climb we then embarked on a 16k descent which started very pleasantly but was then broken up by some steep climbs towards the end. At that point it started to rain, and boy did it rain! By the time we got to the first stop of the day you could barely see 20 yards in front of you and the need for florescent rain jackets became very apparent. The next stage was again completed in the rain, but the weather was starting to improve marginally as we went on. Unfortunately, that improvement didn’t last for very long and we continued in rain and poor visibility for the rest of the day.

The high points of the day were the great team work displayed by the group in very poor conditions and the determination of Justin Cooper, our one-legged cyclist who, with assistance from a small but dedicated group of helpers managed to cycle more or less the entire day, through some difficult terrain and in some atrocious conditions. The low point, at least for Andy Jarvis was a close encounter with the rear of one of the little tuk-tuks, which left him bruised, and the taxi driver and passenger very surprised.

The day's riding finished at lunch time after yet another massive climb and in the afternoon we set off for the evening's accommodation at the Spice Village hotel complex. The journey back was via the Ashabhavan orphanage in Nedunkandam which is run by nuns with no government funding or public money. We spent a marvellous hour or so in the company both the sisters and the 65 orphans with varying degrees of disability and were entertained by dancing and singing. In return, the group reprised the one song they knew.

The evening was spent at the Spice Village hotel, a place it would have been good to see more of, but unfortunately we didn't arrive until after nightfall. We were, however, entertained after dinner in the bar, which was of an old colonial style, by some extremely bad snooker playing. And so to bed, to get ready for the fourth day of the ride, and another challenge involving many hills!

October 16 2008 Day 4 Periyar-Vagamon

Another early start and another hard day's cycling, but at least it wasn't raining! The first stop of the day seemed to be filled with children who were all supposed to be on their way to school, though their presence provided a lot of photo opportunities for the snap-happy amongst us and the chance for Joe Carby to test his cricketing skills with the local youth. As the day passed, we cycled through yet more breathtaking scenery and it was hard to resist the temptation to stop every 10 yards to take photos and instead rely on the group collectively having managed to take all the important photos.

The day passed largely without incident, apart from yours truly having to change his front and back brakes around as the rear ones had worn out over the course of the past few days cycling-amazing when all we'd seemed to do was cycle uphill! Strangely, the distances seemed to be doing the usual trick today of not quite correlating with what we'd been promised by Gideon at the start of each stage. This culminated in most of the group being persuaded that a visit to a tea factory would only be about 3k on flat ground beyond where we were staying that night and deciding that it would be worth the effort. When the distance reached about 9k, most of which seemed to involve hills, we were wondering if it was really worth the effort. Once we'd arrived, it definitely was. Having quite merrily had my morning cuppa (and in fact I'm hoping one is on the way as I type this) for years without ever having really thought about where it came from, and having cycled for the past 4 days through many tea plantations, it was a fascinating insight into how tea is actually produced from the bushes we'd seen so many of.

We were given a guided tour of the factory, which is where all the tea for miles around is brought and shown the entire process from fresh leaf to the end product, which we were all very happy to drink before setting off back to the hotel. It was a very interesting tour, but I rather suspect that any passing health and safety inspectors would have been having kittens before having got halfway round the factory! The heat and dust were intense, and some of the practices appeared to be positively dangerous!

The day was rounded off by a large sing song, accompanied by several Kingfisher beers before everybody went their separate ways to prepare for the now traditional fancy dress party in the evening. There was everybody there from Count Dracula, via a nun to the St Trinians Schoolgirls. An excellent evening was had by all, and the terror of the prospect of the following day's ride was somewhat abated both by liberal lashings of the by now ubiquitous Kingfisher and the thought that the first 30k on the morrow was going to be downhill.

October 17 2008 Day 5 Vagamon-Marari Beach Hotel

And so to the final day's cycling, and there was a number of sore heads this morning! Most of us, with the exception of a couple of people who were ill and Phil White whose back had gone, were under way by soon after 7.00 am and looking forward to the long descent. Unfortunately this was preceded by about 10k of climbing so we were more rudely awakened than anticipated. Finally, the great downhill started and it only claimed a couple of victims. Both Keith and Andreas managed to get entangled with pot holes and come off, though the injuries sustained were thankfully minor.

Once we reached the bottom of the hill we regrouped and then started the long run in to the end of the ride. We were back at sea level and the temperatures were rising again. The lunch stop today was even more special than usual and the crew of chefs had pulled out all the stops. The food was served in a traditional manner on a palm leaf with small amounts of everything. Again, it tasted marvellous and I suspect this will be the first ride I have completed without managing to lose weight. The afternoon's cycling took us through paddy fields which were being worked, but the ride had one last sting in the tail as we had a section of about 15k in the middle of it where the road surface just disappeared. It was extremely tiring work as you were unable to relax for the whole time, as well as being constantly jolted by the bumps and holes that it was impossible to miss. The end of that section was a time to stop, take stock, and ensure that you had the same number of body parts with which you had started.

On to the final stage, which was a nice quick one to get us to the final regrouping stage before riding into the wonderful Marari Beach Hotel. As ever the women took the lead and the men brought up the rear as we cycled into the grounds of the hotel. We were greeted by the spouses of brothers Tesch (and yes Pat, they really are both brothers), and group of dancers and an elephant, as well as a much needed drink. After the usual hugs, tears and group photos we all went our separate ways to settle into our accommodation and have a much needed shower. And what accommodation! I spent almost the entire time we were there waiting for somebody to tap me on the shoulder and tell me I was in the wrong place-it was far too good for the likes of us! A two minute walk to the sea, a wonderful pool-and some were lucky enough to have their own private pools at their villas. At least one pool party that night went on until very nearly dawn!

The final day was spent for most relaxing around the pool and doing some last minute souvenir shopping, while a small number of brave souls got up early and went on the trip around the backwaters. Whatever anybody chose to do, a good time was had by all. That evening we had the traditional meal followed by the concert, which was up to the usual standard of entertainment. The evening concluded with communal singing to the accompaniment of Laurence on his guitar. Those who were staying on were being deeply envied by those of us who had to be up and out to travel back to the airport at 6 the following morning.

We drove back on that last morning on minibuses, on ours to the sounds of Boney M's greatest hits-who knew they had made so many records! The trip back passed uneventfully and we landed back at Heathrow, taking home some wonderful memories of a marvellous trip.

To conclude, as is right, proper and usual on these occasions, there are many people I'd like to thank. I must start with my sponsors, who have yet again helped to contribute to the many worthy causes which Openwork supports, and without whom none of this would be possible. I'd like to also thank Midge, for yet again organising the whole thing, and for coping with 45 individuals who can be incredibly like a school party on a day trip when they try(or, in fact, when they don't). The local team on the ground in India, led by the amazing Commander Sam Samuel who looked after us so well for the entire time. I can't remember a trip where the roads have been so well marked for us, where the mechanics have always been there exactly when you need them, when the food has been so good and the accommodation has been of such a consistently high standard. Finally, I'd like to thank the rest of the group for having made the whole experience so enjoyable. Everybody pulled together and worked hard and uncomplainingly for each other. See you all in Mexico!

THE LAW OF HUMAN RIGHTS

Second Edition

Richard Clayton QC and
Hugh Tomlinson QC

‘Eight years have passed since the first edition of this valuable work. In that time there has been an enormous growth in human rights jurisprudence, both at Strasbourg and in this jurisdiction. Human rights law has become an essential part of the diet of every lawyer and judge in his country. The second edition of Clayton and Tomlinson could not be more timely.’

IMPORTANT FORTHCOMING PUBLICATIONS

Russian Law 3rd edition

by William Butler

Oxford University Press, Hardback, ISBN 9780199562220, £175.00, due February 2009

When the first edition of Professor Butler's book was published in 1999 it was hailed as the first systematic account of Russian law and the Russian legal system since the demise of the Soviet Union. The second edition built on his examination of Russian law in the context of other legal systems and made a thorough examination of the country's legal institutions and procedural and substantive law. In this third edition the author reviews the law reform of Putin's era, including the impact of decisions of the European Court of Human Rights as sources of Russian law, a new chapter on insurance law and the essentials of local government law. The book has been updated throughout to include the latest legislation since the last edition, including reform of the law of intellectual property, competition, foreign investment, the legal status of foreigners, treaties, securities, pledge and mortgage, State corporations, the legal profession and the penal system, labour law, taxation, procedure, international arbitration, the judicial system and procuracy, justices of the peace, State structure, and environmental and natural resource law. Butler's emphasis is on post-Soviet law reform and on the creation of a democratic, market-oriented legal framework which seeks to attract foreign investment. Chapters such as those on entrepreneurial law, securities regulation, banking and insurance, taxation, and the status of foreigners and foreign investment law make this volume an essential purchase for those advising potential investors in Russia and the CIS. For those with a more academic interest in Russian law there are also chapters on Russian legal history and legal theory, together with a detailed guide to relevant publications and materials. This authoritative work will be embraced by practising lawyers, the investment community, government legal advisors, and scholars seeking a comprehensive and practical introduction to the Russian legal system.

Disciplinary and Regulatory Proceedings 5th edition

by Brian Harris OBE QC and Andrew Carnes

Jordan Publishing, Hardcover, ISBN 9781846611704, £95.00, due February 2009

Written by leading practitioners with considerable experience of tribunals both as chairmen and lawyers, this new edition provides an authoritative examination of the general principles that apply to all regulatory and disciplinary tribunals, including coverage of the basis of the tribunal's authority and extent of its jurisdiction, natural justice, human rights, grounds for disciplinary action, investigations, decision to prosecute, hearings, evidence, appeals, and enforcement.

Guidance on the practical application of the general principles is provided, looking at such issues as the retrospective effect of rule changes, malicious falsehood, data protection and freedom of information, whistleblowing, and guidance on defending a claim or how to avoid or defuse a claim. The disciplinary arrangements of the most prominent regulators are described in outline in a separate section. The new edition contains a new chapter on Legal Services Regulation, and covers significant new case-law, including the House of Lords' decision in Re B(Children) concerning the standard of proof in civil proceedings. New disciplinary schemes, such as the Accountants' Joint Disciplinary Scheme, Bar Standards Board rules, and Solicitors disciplinary proceedings rules, are also covered.

Financial Services for Solicitors: Law, Practice and Precedents

by SIFA (Solicitors Independent Financial Advice) and edited by Ian Muirhead
Law Society Publishing, Paperback, ISBN 9781853287541, £79.95, due March 2009

One of the challenges to solicitors posed by the Legal Services Act is that of reducing reliance on transactional business and building enduring client relationships. A business area which commends itself as complementing solicitors' mainstream work is financial advice, and the more enterprising firms are increasingly seeking to align with fee-based financial advisers to provide a more comprehensive client service. Financial Services for Solicitors examines the pros and cons of the various forms of association between solicitors and financial advisers and describes fifteen areas of business in which solicitors' advice may be incomplete without the input of a financial adviser. Part 1 explains the structural changes permitted by the Legal Services Act; relevant Law Society and FSA regulation; tax, accounting and legal issues; and the alternative forms of association between solicitors and financial advisers, including joint ventures and separate businesses. Part 2 details some of the business areas in which financial services impact solicitors' work, including investment for trusts and for clients who lack mental capacity; the treatment of pensions on divorce; advice to the elderly; tax planning for expatriates; personal injury trusts; pensions for business owners and estate planning. Part 3 provides practical compliance and marketing precedents, which are reproduced on an accompanying CD-ROM for ease of use.

Derivatives: The Key Principles 3rd edition

by John-Peter Castagnino
Oxford University Press, Hardcover, ISBN 9780199556366, £135.00, due February 2009

This book is a practical guide to derivatives, setting out a straightforward and easily understood explanation of the basic concepts, the different types of derivative product, who uses derivatives, and why and how derivatives are used. The book explains both more established products (such as futures, options, and swaps) and more innovative products (such as CPPI structures and those derivative contracts used as financing tools). The expansion of the derivative market to cover different underlying assets (such as freight, power trading, emissions trading, and hedge funds) is explored. The author provides guidance as to the legal and regulatory treatment of derivatives. The book looks at the key documents that are used in both the exchange-based and over-the-counter (OTC) markets and explores the important materials published by ISDA. The book also discusses other related topics including the accounting and tax treatments of derivatives. The book considers the background to current legal trends, including the developing strand of English case law on claims for the mis-selling of derivative products and the retail offer of derivatives, which has recently been the subject of considerable debate within the financial services industry. The third edition includes a new discussion of the retail offer of derivatives, and discusses a greater number of derivative products (including CPPI structures, derivatives used as financing tools, power trading, emissions trading, multi-asset derivatives, fund-linked derivatives, derivatives based on “computed data”, and the different wrappers” in which derivative exposures are made available). It provides greatly expanded discussion of the ISDA documents used in the over-the-counter (OTC) market and looks in more detail at the duty of care (selling and misselling, including the recent decision in the “Springwell” litigation).

Human Fertilisation and Embryology: The New Law
by Dewinder Birk

Jordan Publishing, Paperback, ISBN 9781846611384, £45.00, due February 2009
The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 represents the most radical overhaul of the United Kingdom’s embryology laws since the enactment of the original 1990 Act and is intended to ensure that the legislative framework keeps up with the fast pace of technological, social and medical change. The new Act is a comprehensive amending statute which makes considerable changes to the operation of both the HFEA 1990 and regulation in the area of assisted reproductive technology and embryo research. Major provisions contained in the Act include: extending regulation to the creation and use of all embryos outside of the human body, regardless of the processes used in their creation; increasing the scope of legitimate embryo research activities, allowing hybrid embryos to be created for research into serious diseases; enforcing a ban on sex selection of offspring for non-medical reasons; retention of a duty, when providing fertility treatment, to take account of “the welfare of the child”, but removal of the reference to ‘the need for a father’; and recognising same-sex couples as legal parents of children conceived through the use of donated sperm, eggs or embryos. Human Fertilisation and Embryology: The New Law provides an authoritative commentary, highlighting areas of potential difficulty and offering practical guidance. This book is essential reading for family lawyers, academics and medical professionals. It includes the text of both the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 and the HFEA 1990 (as amended).

Environmental Law in Property Transactions, 3rd edition

by Andrew Waite, Tim

Jewell, Gregory Jones and Michael Woods

Tottel Publishing, Paperback, ISBN 9781845921064, £70.00, due February 2009
Extensively updated and re-edited, this new edition of Environmental Law in Property Transactions provides the up-to-date guidance that steers property law specialists through the environmental issues which arise in day-to-day property transactions. It includes annotations to standard enquiries as well practical commentary on the environmental issues which arise at every step of the conveyancing transaction. The coverage also takes in the different aspects of environmental legislation, and case law - information which enables practitioners to gain an understanding of the context in which questions may arise, and the pitfalls to avoid. As well as this key guidance, an accessible selection of precedents is provided, alongside a brand-new chapter covering development contracts.

Telecommunications Law and Regulation 3rd edition

Edited by Ian Walden
Oxford University Press, Paperback, ISBN 9780199559350, £95.00, due February 2009
Since the last edition of the book was published, there have been a number of important developments in the telecommunications industry, for example the operational separation of BT in the UK, which may prove a model for the rest of Europe in dealing with incumbent operators, and the debate over “network neutrality” in the US, which is dominating the roll-out of the infrastructure. Telecommunications Law and Regulation is fully updated and contains new chapters on technology and markets, and capacity agreements. Other topics addressed in this new edition include the consequences of convergence within an EU and international context, including the blurring of conduit and content regulations; the implications of IP and Next Generation Networks; issues of communication privacy in the context of the “war on terrorism”, and how these impact on the commercial operations of service providers; the obtaining and trading of spectrum, with governments and regulators looking to fully exploit the “digital dividend”; and the application of ex post competition law to the sector, as governments attempt to deregulate competitive markets. The book examines all aspects of EU 2003 regime; implementation issues, and the proposed reforms arising from the 2006 review. Written by leading experts in the field, it offers comprehensive coverage of the law and regulatory structures relating to telecommunications. It is essential reading for legal practitioners involved in the communications industry and of interest to management consultants, bankers and accountants who will need to be aware of the legal implications of this fast changing area. It is also a highly accessible and thought-provoking book for postgraduate study.

RUSSIA AND THE LAW OF NATIONS IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

William E. Butler

ISBN: 9780854900282
Hardback 600pp.
£65.00

The origins and development of Russian law and of State practice in developing the law of nations, mostly with a Russian dimension, are explored in 35 articles and reviews revised for this volume. Included are several biographical sketches of American, British, and Russian jurists whose roles have been neglected, together with the texts of rare syllabi from the Soviet era that collectively configure the substance of international legal education from 1917 to 1991.

STATE IMMUNITY IN RUSSIAN PERSPECTIVE

Ekaterina Bykhovskaya

ISBN: 9780854900343

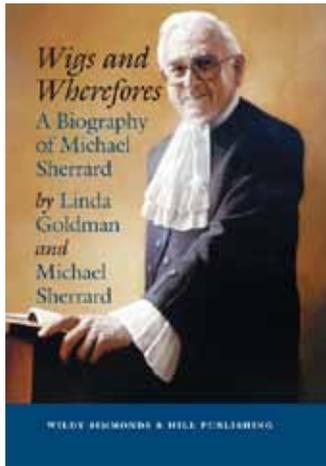

Hardback 250pp.

£45.00

Since the nineteenth century State immunity has been one of the most controversial doctrines in international law. While its development in Western jurisdictions fluctuated between absolute and restrictive immunity, Russian approaches to State immunity reinforced the overall controversy as they followed a quite distinct path depending mostly on the political stance of the changing regimes. At the same time, although absolute immunity was the official Soviet position, the Soviet Union's approach to State immunity significantly contributed to the increasing acceptance of restrictive immunity by the end of the twentieth century, largely in response to its routine pleas of State immunity.

Significant changes in Russia's politics, economics and law caused by the dissolution of the Soviet Union have entailed the revision of its approach to State immunity. However, the emerging trend towards the restriction of immunity has been highly inconsistent and has given rise to conflicts between different legal instruments.

This book is the first endeavour in almost fifty years to cover the entire range of questions peculiar to the Russian position on State immunity. It covers proceedings instituted against Russia in foreign courts, the development of Russian doctrinal views, provisions of international treaties, relevant legislation, judicial practice and the Russian draft law on State immunity. The full scope of these issues is examined in the context of international practice. The research concludes with an analysis of the possible impact of the United Nations Convention on Jurisdictional Immunities of States and their Property on Russia's perspective on State immunity.

WIGS AND WHEREFORES: A BIOGRAPHY OF MICHAEL SHERRARD QC

Linda Goldman and Michael Sherrard

Foreword by Joshua Rozenberg

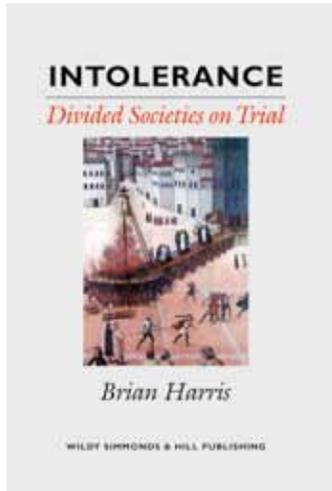

ISBN: 9780854900305

Hardback 400pp.

£24.95

There is a generation of lawyers, barristers and solicitors alike, who, together with the many clients that he represented during a long and distinguished career, consider Michael Sherrard to have been one of the great recent influences on the legal profession and the Bar in particular. Lord Denning, before whom he appeared in trials and appeals, said that he regarded him as ‘the best of advocates’. Michael Sherrard was involved in numerous high-profile cases in both domestic courts and those of the Far East.

This book provides a frank and entertaining account of Michael Sherrard’s life in the law. Many of the events and personalities within its pages continue to spark public interest: the defence of James Hanratty; the inquiry into John Stonehouse’s activities; encounters with Robert Maxwell; and the anti-apartheid activities of Peter Hain. The book also chronicles his major role in developing modern advocacy worldwide. Wherever the English common law has operated within the last twenty-odd years, the voice of Michael Sherrard speaks through many of the trained advocates.

INTOLERANCE: DIVIDED SOCIETIES ON TRIAL

Brian Harris OBE, QC

ISBN: 9780854900251

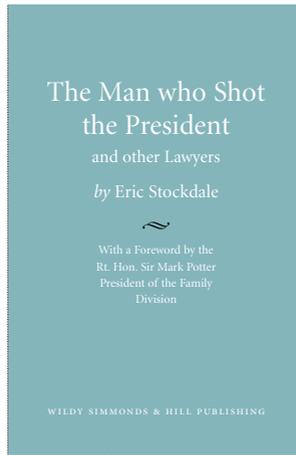

Hardback 300pp.

£19.99

Most of us are intolerant of something, whether it is our neighbour's dog, his politics or the colour of his skin, but we may not always recognize our lack of tolerance. By making extensive use of surviving court documentation from famous - and not so famous - trials, Brian Harris is able to explore several issues that have given rise to deep-rooted divisions within Western society, such as slavery, religion and homosexuality. The result is a highly readable narrative, which often challenges traditional interpretations of the cases concerned, punctuated throughout by the author's pertinent insights into the personalities, events and legal processes of the day.

The cases include the 'witches' of Salem whose tragic story was plundered by Arthur Miller in his play, The Crucible, the execution of a seventy-year-old woman for giving shelter to a man on the run from England's last rebellion, the prosecution of a schoolteacher for teaching evolution, the persecution of Oscar Wilde and the prosecution of Penguin Books for publishing Lady Chatterley's Lover. Intolerance: Divided Societies on Trial provides an engaging and thought-provoking account of man's intolerance to man through the ages.

THE MAN WHO SHOT THE PRESIDENT AND OTHER LAWYERS

By
Eric Stockdale

ISBN: 9780854900299
Hardback 118pp
£14.95

In From Wig and Pen to Computer the author made brief references to his practice and wrote about his experience as a writer of articles and books on legal and allied topics. In the present book he gives an amusing account of some of his more entertaining and interesting cases while at the Bar and on the Bench, coupled with revealing stories about some of his contemporaries in the law. It is likely to prove an acceptable gift for law students, lawyers and laymen alike.

Sir Mark Potter, in his Foreword, comments: ‘This book is a treasure house of anecdote and reminiscence.’ He goes on to describe it as ‘a fascinating patchwork assembled from the varied fabric of a career at the Bar of a kind which has all but disappeared in the age of increased specialisation, followed by 22 years as a humane and humorous Circuit Judge before whom advocates and litigants alike were treated with fairness, courtesy and consideration.’

For a limited period and when purchased together, The Man Who Shot the President and From Wig and Pen to Computer is being offered for the special price of £25

FROM WIG AND PEN TO COMPUTER
REFLECTIONS OF A LEGAL AUTHOR

By
Eric Stockdale

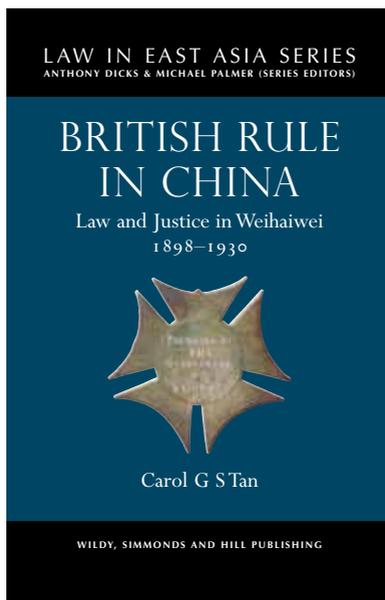

ISBN: 9780854900220
Hardback 152pp
£14.95

Eric Stockdale left school at 14 and went to work in wartime London. After two years in the post-war Army he was called to the Bar at the age of 21 and appointed a Circuit judge shortly after his 43rd. birthday. He took early retirement at 65 and then heard Criminal Injuries Compensation appeals for ten years.

When he became a barrister in 1950 he was a young man with an unusual background, which included 'a pathetic attempt' (his words) to follow several relatives into journalism. After his failure to break into Fleet Street, Eric Stockdale decided to earn his living from chambers in the adjoining Temple. His ability to write led to the publication of many articles, followed by books on criminal justice and historical topics, culminating with two works inspired by the links of many leaders of the American Revolution with his own Inn of Court, the Middle Temple. As this book is about his experiences as a legal author, it also deals briefly with his life in the law and describes how he became interested in the different subjects about which he wrote.

Sir Igor Judge, in his Foreword, comments: 'This is a remarkable story by any standards,' and adds, 'much is written humorously.' The reader, whether lawyer or layman, is likely to concur with that judgment.

BRITISH RULE IN CHINA
LAW AND JUSTICE IN WEIHAIWEI 1898-1930

By
Carol G. S. Tan

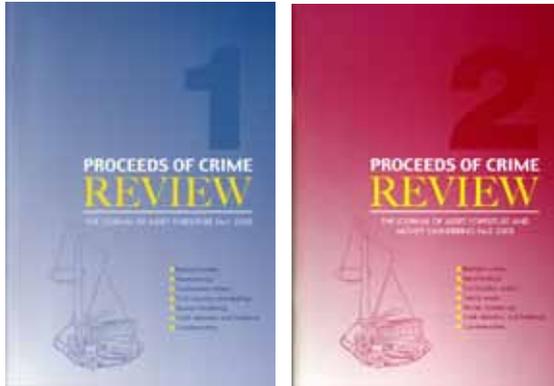

ISBN: 9780854900268

Hardback 348pp

£45

Written using official records and other sources, British Rule in China is the first systematic account of the legal history of Weihaiwei, a small territory leased by China to Britain in 1898. It is a fascinating and accessible account of the territory's constitution, laws, courts, judges and magistrates, penal policy, and police force. The book explores the various problems and controversies faced by the local authorities in administering justice as well as their attempts to resolve them. The author argues that, as originally conceived, Weihaiwei's legal system made few concessions to the fact that the territory remained a part of China yet, in practice and for reasons which are explored in the book, it integrated some aspects of Chinese institutions, law and custom. Given the centrality of the law, its institutions and its officials to the exercise of British jurisdiction, this work is a contribution not merely to colonial legal history but also to the history of this part of China under foreign rule.
